Board Chair, One To World
Erica Berthou is a senior partner with Kirkland & Ellis LLP. She is widely recognized as one of the country’s leading attorneys in the field of private investment fund formation.

A dual Swedish-American citizen, Ms. Berthou was born on a small island north of Sweden, where she grew up camping with her family, learning wilderness survival skills, and becoming an accomplished equestrian. From this rural childhood, she went on to graduate from Stockholm University, Uppsala University Faculty of Law, King’s College London, and New York University School of Law, which she attended on a scholarship sponsored by the royal family of Sweden.

Ms. Berthou began her career as a tax attorney in Sweden, where she practiced for several years. During a consortium meeting, she was noticed by a team at Debevoise & Plimpton and recruited to join the firm in New York. The offer came at an opportune time for her and her husband, whom she had met at King’s College. “My husband is from Zimbabwe. He is from a different continent, religion, skin color, and food culture from me. It was the best thing of my life to meet him. He introduced me to the world.” However, 20 years ago, she says, “it was not easy for him to assimilate in Sweden. I was surprised at how hard it was to be different.” The new job provided the chance for the couple to live in an international city.

When she came to the U.S., learning to work in a different language and adapting to cultural differences proved a formidable challenge. Ms. Berthou found herself needing to make major adjustments to understand the different social conventions of New York and America, and the diverse backgrounds of her colleagues and clients. Her Swedish accent and expressions became a source of amusement to her teammates at work, and she appreciated the humor, as it reminded her not to take herself too seriously. She went on to be global head of the investment funds group at her firm prior to joining Kirkland & Ellis in December 2017.

Ms. Berthou travels often for work, with clients in Latin America, Europe, and Asia. She represents many premier global alternative asset management firms including Antin Infrastructure Partners, Blackstone Alternative Asset Management, The Carlyle Group, EQT Partners, and Oaktree Capital Management. Among her many awards, Ms. Berthou was selected as a “2018 Distinguished Leader” by the New York Law Journal as part of their Professional Excellence Awards: she was the only fund formation attorney to receive this honor.

Ms. Berthou and her husband have two sons, and their extended family has become truly global: they have relatives in India, Hong Kong, the U.S., South Africa, Zimbabwe, and Turkey, and represent, she says, “pretty much every religion.” Ms. Berthou is also a member of the board of directors of the USA Cycling Foundation and an elite women’s cycling team.
Georgia Garinois-Melenikiotou is Executive Vice President for Corporate Marketing at The Estée Lauder Companies. She is a member of the Executive Leadership team, and as head and architect of the Corporate Marketing function of the multinational prestige beauty products company, she is responsible for further building its competitive advantage and achieving marketing excellence across its portfolio of more than 30 brands. Estée Lauder’s products are sold in 150 countries, and the New York-based company has 46,000 employees worldwide.

A native of Greece, Ms. Garinois-Melenikiotou was a Fulbright scholar to the MIT Sloan School of Management, where she received her MBA.

The beauty industry did not seem to be a natural choice for Ms. Garinois-Melenikiotou, who studied mechanical engineering with a concentration in nuclear engineering at Athens Polytechnic, and worked at CERN, the European Organization for Nuclear Research in Geneva, as a project engineer.

“Curiosity and a lack of fear have led to a continuous transformation of my fields of ‘expertise’ or profession,” Ms. Garinois-Melenikiotou says. “From nuclear engineering to getting an MBA to working in M&A, then pharmaceuticals and later in the beauty industry—all this in a number of countries across the world—I always trusted my gut.”

Prior to joining The Estée Lauder Companies, Ms. Garinois-Melenikiotou was with Johnson & Johnson for 26 years, holding assignments that spanned seven countries. She was the Global President of the Beauty business unit of Johnson & Johnson in Europe, Africa, and the Middle East and established the French affiliate of J&J Consumer. She is an elected member of the Almirall Pharmaceuticals Board of Directors based in Barcelona, Spain, and previously served on the Bacardi Limited Board of Directors, based in Bermuda. She is also a member of the MIT Sloan Executive Board.

Choosing to work in different cultures and countries has meant sacrifices at times. “I lived in a different country or continent from my husband Philippe for several years,” Ms. Garinois-Melenikiotou recalls. But, she says, “Philippe and I share a common vision for a diverse, open, and inclusive world, as well as for a life journey of understanding the world. And together with our children, Laura-India and Alessandro, we have built a life that is anything but conventional.”

She is a passionate advocate for women’s education and mentoring. Over the last 25 years, she has mentored more than 30 young women from around the world. One young woman from the Philippines used to walk four to five hours every day to get to school. “She’s now the leader of a major investment bank in Asia,” Ms. Garinois-Melenikiotou says.

Her commitment to education stems from her electrician father’s determination to provide his three daughters with the schooling that he was unable to pursue. “He wanted to open our minds and seed the desire to know the world and dream big.”

Fluent in Greek, English, French, and Italian, Ms. Garinois-Melenikiotou is an avid photographer and amateur painter.
James Rhee is an impact-focused entrepreneur, investor, and educator. As both a CEO and investment firm founder, Mr. Rhee has generated market-leading returns by creating bespoke capital and operational solutions through the application of algorithmic, technological, and cultural change. At Ashley Stewart, as Chairman, CEO, and investor, Mr. Rhee has transformed a twice-bankrupt, unprofitable retailer with decades of operating losses into an industry leader founded upon a values-based, social commerce paradigm. FirePine Group, the investment firm he founded in 2009, invests the capital of some of the world’s most sophisticated investors to fuel impactful transformation in multiple enterprises, including Ashley Stewart.

Prior to this, Mr. Rhee was a senior investment professional at two leading, Boston-based private equity firms, stewarding billions of dollars of enterprise value.

Mr. Rhee credits his upbringing as the son of Korean immigrants in a racially homogenous community on Long Island with instilling in him a lifelong commitment to advocating for the underdog and the undervalued. “I always stood up for my family, particularly my mother, whose confidence was chipped away as she struggled with English in her new country.” His father was a pediatrician who spent his life caring for children, regardless of their families’ ability to pay.

Mr. Rhee is a voracious learner and deeply values education. He graduated from Harvard College, studying at Oxford his junior year, and from Harvard Law School, where he was an editor of the Harvard Law Review. He took an immersive summer language program in Korea and improved his German while writing for a travel guidebook in Austria one summer.

He has led courses at Cambridge University for business executives, mentored Brazilian women business owners through Sebrae, and is a visiting lecturer at Duke Law School, where his proprietary money/happiness class is now required for every Duke Law and Entrepreneurship School graduate student. He bridges industries and peoples through his seat on the National Retail Federation board and the JPMorgan Chase Advancing Black Pathways Advisory Council.

His career path has been characterized by an ability to continually adapt and a willingness to take risks—all in service of making a difference in people’s lives. In 2013 Mr. Rhee took the unconventional step of assuming the role of CEO of Ashley Stewart, a women’s plus-size fashion brand with deep roots in the African American community, as it was spiraling toward liquidation. “They reminded me of my mom—women who deserved respect and to be seen, but who rarely were.” The retail stores served as community hubs, bringing generations of women together in a space that made them feel valued, empowered, and beautiful. By listening to employees and customers with humility and empathy, he has transformed Ashley Stewart into a thriving, mission-driven business of influence.

Mr. Rhee, who lives with his wife and three children in Boston, sums up his core beliefs and principals as “kindness and math,” which are universal in any language. “They are transcendent and empirical truths.”
Presenting tonight’s awards are three young global leaders who have been active in One To World programs.

Koloina Andriambolason
is a Fulbright grantee from Madagascar to New York University’s Robert F. Wagner School of Public Service, where she is pursuing an MPA in Public and Nonprofit Management and Policy. She has a Bachelor’s degree in Business Administration from Madagascar’s National Institute of Accounting Sciences and Business Administration. Koloina’s passion is working with children and youth. She conceived and implemented an innovative empowerment program for young rural girls while working for Teach For Madagascar. After graduating, she hopes to support the work of community-based development organizations in Madagascar.

Maria Angela Ruz Ocaranza
is a Fulbright grantee from Chile, studying at the Columbia University School of Law. She has a law degree from Universidad de Chile, and also received a diploma from the same university’s Business and Economics School in tax law. She worked at Deloitte Chile before joining the Fulbright program, providing legal and tax advisory services to a diverse client base in the financial industry. Angela has represented Chile in international table tennis competitions and is an avid traveler.

Giorgos Taxidis
is a Fulbright grantee from Greece who is studying for a Master’s degree in Fine Arts at the New York Academy of Art. He is a graduate of the Faculty of Fine Arts, School of Visual and Applied Arts, of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. Among his many awards and honors, he was commended for the publication of the special series of stamps “Europa 2012” titled “Visit Greece” in the Hellenic Post Office competition. A figurative artist, he also explores new materials and media that often result in subtractive pieces.
One To World is proud to be designated by the U.S. Department of State as the official Coordinator of Enrichment Programs for Fulbright grantees in the greater New York area.

In 1991, we approached Senator J. William Fulbright with the idea of creating a special event to raise the visibility of the Fulbright vision in New York City. With his endorsement and support, our first annual Fulbright Awards Dinner was held that year, and the Senator was honored at the Dinner in 1993. His wife, Harriet Mayor Fulbright, has served as Honorary Chair of the event since his death in 1995, and was herself honored in 2000. The One To World Fulbright Awards Dinner continues to serve as a celebration of Senator Fulbright’s ideals and inspires those present with a renewed commitment to carry on the work he began.

In his words, “It doesn’t take many to make a difference. A single leader or a few legislators or writers who know something about what other countries are like can contribute to making a wise decision or to forestalling a disastrous one.” The vision and action of Senator Fulbright led to the creation of the Fulbright Program by the U.S. Congress in 1946, following World War II. The Senator conceived of this international educational exchange program as a way to prevent future wars.

For more than 70 years, the Fulbright Program has provided funds for students, scholars, and professionals to undertake study, research, and teaching abroad in more than 160 countries. Approximately 390,000 individuals—Americans and citizens of other countries—have received Fulbright grants since the program’s inception, with funding provided by Congressional appropriations and partner country governments. Fulbright grants are administered by organizations including the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of Education, and the Institute of International Education.

Once Fulbright grantees arrive in the New York area from countries across the globe, One To World connects them with Americans through diverse programs in homes, classrooms, businesses, and communities. Our work is essential to furthering the Fulbright vision of peace through international education and understanding.

“I believe that there is a direct connection between the quality of relationships which international students develop while they are in the United States, and the quality of the economic and political alliances they will make in the years to come. For this reason, I commend Metro International [now One To World] to you.”

Senator J. William Fulbright (1905-1995)
One To World brings Americans together with international university students and Fulbright grantees through dynamic programs in schools, homes, and businesses to share their experiences and perspectives in life-changing ways.

This year, almost 100,000 international students and scholars from 140 countries are studying at New York-area institutions. One To World programs enable these young global leaders to broaden their perspectives and build relationships that will last a lifetime.

The only organization of its kind, One To World collaborates with over 400 international educators at its member colleges, universities, and international exchange organizations in the New York area. Together we enrich the experiences of international students, who themselves make invaluable contributions to our campuses and communities.

Founded in 1977, One To World is designated by the U.S. Department of State as the official Coordinator of Enrichment Programs for the approximately 800 visiting Fulbright grantees studying in the greater New York area each year.

When the late Senator J. William Fulbright authored legislation to create his namesake program after WWII, he specified these services as key components of the Fulbright program. He believed that the off-campus experiences of Fulbright grantees were as important as their academic study in fostering cultural understanding, and ultimately, a peaceful world.

We are proud to carry on this legacy.

“You need a dedicated, professional, and caring network to help you reach your goals. A network that is there for you, believes in you, and offers you insight and guidance – One To World is that network.”

Hamid Elmyar
Fulbright Grantee from Afghanistan
Montclair State University
Each year, One To World provides more than 150 programs that enrich the experiences of international students and Fulbright grantees from over 140 countries in the New York area and broaden their understanding of contemporary life in the United States.

Foreign Affairs Conferences
One To World student delegations bring global perspectives to debates on American foreign policy with cadets and midshipmen at the U.S. Military Academy and the U.S. Naval Academy.

Community Visits with American Families
American hosts welcome international students into their homes in rural, suburban, and urban settings in communities including Lancaster, Pennsylvania and Bushwick, Brooklyn.

Community Service Projects
Through partnerships with local non-profits, students give back to New York City and engage in the American tradition of volunteerism.

Global Career Readiness
International students enhance skills needed to succeed in the global workforce by job shadowing with New York-area professionals and participating in public speaking and mock interview workshops.

Conversations with World Leaders
Fulbright grantees meet leaders in business, education, politics, and the arts for an exchange of ideas and insights across cultures.

“One To World creates meaningful opportunities to connect with other international students and scholars, as well as American host families, with programs that broaden our horizons and enrich our spirits.”

Shuaijun Li
Student from China
The City College of New York, CUNY
One To World’s Global Classroom brings trained Fulbright grantees and international university students (called Global Guides) into New York City and New Jersey schools, and afterschool programs. Global Classroom enables K-12 students, many of whom have never left their neighborhood, to obtain first-hand knowledge of the geography, history, traditions, and current events of cultures and countries around the world.

Discussions among local students and Global Guides help to break down misconceptions and stereotypes about diverse cultures. Global Classroom aids K-12 students in developing an international mindset, which otherwise might be unattainable.

This year’s workshop topics included:
• Freedom of the Press in France
• Access to Education in Afghanistan
• Gender Equality in Peru
• Democracy and the Right to Vote in Chile
• Censorship in Uzbekistan

“Global Classroom taught me that I can take steps to change a problem, even if they are small steps. Small steps can make a big difference.”

7th-Grade Student
Dr. Michael Conti School / P.S. 5, Jersey City

We have carried out Global Classroom since 1985. Typically, workshops are held weekly in participating schools over a period of ten to twenty weeks, resulting in a lasting impact for students. Last year, we delivered 467 workshops to 877 students in 7 schools across New York City and New Jersey. This year, we were happy to expand our reach by offering adult Global Classroom workshops to parents.

“Global Classroom has provided our students with invaluable opportunities to expand their understanding of the world both geographically and culturally, broadening their global perspective.”

David Tenenzaph, Teacher
Pioneer Academy / P.S. 307, Queens
Located on Manhattan’s Lower East Side, Cornelia Connelly Center (CCC) champions girls at risk, empowering them to realize their full potential, from middle school through college and beyond. They operate a school for girls in grades 4 through 8, and then offer a comprehensive graduate support program that provides financial, academic, and emotional support all the way through college graduation.

One To World’s Global Classroom has been proud to partner with CCC for the past two years, bringing the world into the classroom for these young women.

During the 2018-19 school year, Global Classroom at CCC focused on systemic gender inequality around the globe, as well as right here in New York City.

Every week 7th- and 8th-grade students met a Global Guide who spoke on an issue that affects women in her home country. For example, Huaiyu, a Global Guide from China, discussed gender expectations and beauty standards in her home country, and Veera, from Finland, talked about policies to promote gender equality in her home country.

For their final project, students took the lessons they had learned from Global Guides and thought about how they could have a positive impact on girls and women in their own community.

“Even though my students live in a very diverse city, they don’t often have the opportunity to learn about people beyond the borders of their small neighborhoods. Global Classroom brings that diversity into their lives and exposes them to a range of countries and people around the world.”

Shanie LaRocca, Teacher at Cornelia Connelly Center, Manhattan

The 8th-graders chose to focus on helping homeless women, creating resource pamphlets and collecting toiletries, socks, feminine hygiene products, and other necessities from their friends and family to be donated to the Bowery Mission.

Cornelia Connelly Center instills in these young women a sense of their own worth and potential; Global Classroom shows them how to take their first steps to changing the world.
